

FAITH IN THE CITY

EDUCATION AS A PUBLIC GOOD

The Urgent Need to Preserve and Improve Public Education

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3
12–1 PM, WCC Community Room

Rob Schofield, editor of NC Newswire, is our featured speaker as we begin the sixth year of the Faith in the City monthly discussion series.

Schofield will highlight the historical strength of public education in North Carolina — as a public good — and how that strength is being eroded through decreased funding, teacher burnout, and community interference in curriculum and policy decisions. Discussion will include practical steps that can be taken to reverse those negative trends and once again build a supportive culture for public education that benefits all students.
